

A LIVING LYRIC.

publishing exquisite poetry, which was rewarded by universal favor when it was published years ago, re-appears in the form of the press, and has another tour of circulation. It was from the pen of William Miller, of Ohio, who, a General in the Union Army, was one amongst the gallant dead at Antietam.

I am dying, Egypt, dying:—Shakespeare.
I am dying, Egypt, dying,
 Echo the crimson life fast,
And the dark Phutian shadows
 Gather round the altar;
Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Hearken to the great hoarse cry,
 Thou, and thou alone, must hear.

Though my scarred and veteran legions
Bare their eagles high no more,
And my arm, oh! Queen, support me,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Strew dark Antium's fathoms here,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
No glistening guards surround me,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
I must perish like a Roman—
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
—Die the great Triumvir still.

Let not Caesar's servile minions
Stare the life that I have lost,
Twice no woman's hand shall slew him,
 'Twas his own fate struck the blow,
He, like the great Caesar, was a hero,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
For his star index quaked away,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Him who, drunk with thy carcases,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Shall die the world away!

Should the base phœnician rabble
Dare assail my name at Rome,
Where the noble apostle, Octavia,
 Wore within her widening hair,
Seek to stain the Gods here with
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Altars, avenge, avenge him,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
And let the world be wrungling
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Yet shall mount the throne of kings.

And for that, star-eyed Egyptian!
Glorious sorceress of the Nile,
Lay I the path to nightrons horrors
 With a crown of thorns and a wreath
Give the Cæsar crowns and arches,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Let me wear the laurel tresses,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
And let me wear the laurel tresses,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Triumphing in love like thine.

I am dying, Egypt, dying:
 Hark! I frusting toeman's cry:
—Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Let me frust them ere I die:
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Ah! no more maid the battle
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Shall sue for sensual pleasures well,
 Thou art arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Lies and Ostris guard thee.

EXPENDITURES.—Boston has expendi-tary purposes, since the beginning of the year, the sum of $1,360,000. The expenditure of the city government last year for the school-houses was $336,736.93, $174,567.84 the previous year. The of the water debt, being the first cost interest and the expense of carrying on the same, together with their first cost, is $1,007,000. The income from the works of the city is $488,000. The annual expenditure on the cost, which was paid in the previous year, there was an excess amounting to $2,154,350. The city year only one in which the revenue has the whole expenditures.
